SANTA MONICA, CA 90401

You have just completed your first visit to Crash Center, U.S.A., where dummies are sometimes more human than humans, where split-second action is often funnier than humor, and where the unexpected is always expected.

The personnel of Crash Center, U.S.A., from Dr. Zub, the brilliant dummy scientist, to Slick and Spin, the Abbott and Costello-like side-splitting(we mean that literally) sidekicks, to the overserious Ted and the underserious Daryl all happily welcome you.

Even the evil Junkman, this sinister villain mastermind with a misfired chip in his dummy brain, is glad to see you here. If just to taunt you with his malevolent madness.

We are all glad you found your way here and bid you return next month. We promise you an even whackier time.

This, of course, has been only the first of an ongoing series concerning this extraordinary place and its unbelievable occupants. Please write to us and let us know what you think of it. (Of course, be too cruel, and may a dummy like Junkman crash into your house to say hello!) But kidding aside, we want to hear from you and will find the space in CRASHING OUT to print many of your comments and letters.

We want to thank a couple of our creators for bringing you this issue. (And we'll tell you more about them in later issues.) Angelo DeCesare, who wrote the fantastic story, and Bill Vallely, who did the brilliant pencils for both the insides and the cover, are two of comics' finest talents. And wait'll you see what they've come up with for next month!

And speaking of next month, not only are you going to meet again the Crash Dummies, but with them—and, frankly, very much against them—will be the CRASH MUMMIES! If you think you can handle that, better order your issue early...it could be a sell-out! Never has Junkman's villainy been so terrible, never has his success seemed so close, never have his talents been so immense. These are creations that Dr. Frankenstein would have sung in his shower about!

But that is only one of two knockout surprises coming your way. Along with the scary saga of the Crash Mummies comes the hilarious origin story of the Dummies themselves. It's a story to treasure. As one of the characters asks, "Is this the story of the crash birds and the crash bees?" Well, it is, and much more.

So be here!

And in the meantime, if you've got something to say, send it along to:
